Complementary and Alternative Therapies in Nursing Education - Nursing Practice Update.

Many people in the many nurses are expanding their clinical practice by introducing Complementary Medicine (CAM) to supplement traditional medicine. CAM is a broad set of systems, practices, and products not considered part of conventional medicine. CAM includes a wide range of therapies, such as acupuncture, chiropractic care, herbal medicine, and mind-body interventions. CAM practices are used by millions of people worldwide to manage health and prevent disease. CAM practitioners believe that healing is a holistic process involving the interaction of mind, body, and spirit.

Complementary and Alternative Therapies for Nursing Practice (4th Edition) provides an excellent introduction to alternative therapies. Systematized health care practices, botanical healing, manual healing, and guided images to practice are covered in this text. The book also includes a comprehensive overview of CAM therapies that nurses may encounter in their practices, with a focus on complementary & alternative therapies in nursing practice.

Complementary and alternative practices and integrative therapies may address health needs by promoting holistic care. The book covers the integration of CAM and clinical care. It is an influential resource for nurses in practice, education, and research. The text is written for nurses, students, and healthcare providers who wish to integrate CAM into their practices.

Complementary and Alternative Therapies for Nursing Practice (4th Edition) is essential reading for nurses interested in exploring CAM and its potential for improving patient outcomes. The book is an excellent resource for nurses who want to learn more about CAM and its role in nursing practice.

Karen Lee Fontaine
Complementary/Alternative Therapies. The competency of a nurse to perform complementary and alternative therapies begins with. The use of complementary therapy in nursing practice - Nursing Times (Previous title: Holistic Nursing and Complementary/Alternative Modalities). as chiropractic or craniosacral therapy are not within the scope of nursing practice.