only by means of the formulation of offers of the sector in the orders nationally and internationally. ACOPI is the organization that created the Colombian Fund of Modernization. A survey also points out that in the year 2000, there were around 7,600 industrial workers. Qi Yinfeng and Wang Manshu's survey (2005) found that of 210 listed companies and 460 non-listed companies, the course gap between foreign and Chinese enterprise financial management indicates a tendency of quick development. Qi Yinfeng and Wang Manshu's survey (2005) found that of 210 listed companies and 460 non-listed companies, the course gap between foreign and Chinese enterprise financial management presents the tendency of quick development. Another major weakness of business financing in Bangladesh is lack of its modernization.