Lincoln's commando: the biography of Commander W. B. Cushing
Commander William Barker Cushing (4 November 1842 – 17 December 1871) was a Union Navy officer during the American Civil War. He became famed as the creator and commander of thePago Decho, a submarine-like warship that he designed and built under the cover of secrecy to destroy Confederate warships. His contributions were instrumental in the Union's victory in the naval battle of Mobile Bay on August 5, 1864.

Lincoln's Commando: The Biography of Commander W. B. Cushing
John C. Calhoun, once the Vice President of the United States, was a champion of states' rights and a strong supporter of the Confederate cause. However, he suffered a stroke in 1858, and his political influence waned. He died on February 18, 1850.
