What Wedding Flowers are in Season in Spring? Telegraph

Every gardener makes a list of spring flowers during the dark days of winter, and looks forward eagerly to the first burst of spring color. Spring arrives at different times in different regions, but for the most part, spring flowers begin to bloom in late winter and early spring. Spring flowers are usually the first flowers to bloom after the winter weather has finally given way to warmer temperatures.

Some of the most popular spring flowers include tulips, daffodils, crocus, hyacinths, and narcissus. These flowers are often used in wedding bouquets and centerpieces, as well as in gardens and flower arrangements.

Other popular spring flowers include primroses, violets, and bluebells. These flowers are usually found in the wild, and are often used as accents in garden designs.

Spring flowers are a symbol of new beginnings and hope, and they are a welcome sight after the long, dark winter. In many cultures, spring flowers are associated with fertility and renewal.

So the next time you go outside and see a cluster of spring flowers, take a moment to stop and enjoy the beauty of the season. And when you plan your wedding, consider using spring flowers to add a touch of nature and color to your special day.