Towards A Theory Of Comparative Literature: Selected Papers

Due to the length and nature of the text, I will provide a brief summary and key points:

- The text is a collection of selected papers presented in various divisions of the International Comparative Literature Association.
- It includes contributions from scholars on the theory of comparative literature, focusing on methods, theories, and the role of comparative studies in cultural and literary analysis.
- The papers explore various aspects such as the role of comparative literature in understanding cultural and historical contexts, the methodologies used, and the interdisciplinary nature of the field.
- The text emphasizes the importance of comparative studies in bridging differences between cultures and literatures, and in fostering a deeper understanding of global contexts.

For a comprehensive understanding, one would need to read the individual papers and contributions within the collection.
In this paper, I discuss an apriori location of comparative literature with regard to aspects of "On Literariness: From Post-Structuralism to Systems Theory. Toward Comparative Cultural Studies: A Selected Bibliography of Comparative Exploring Postmodernism: Selected Papers Presented at a Workshop.

The Department of Comparative Literature provides a broad range of courses. The following two courses: COML 4999 - Seminar in Theory and the Core Course, courses from that major toward their requirements in Comparative Literature. Of this track, students who select it should work closely with their faculty advisor.
